

Resource Quality and Accessibility Checklist for People with Intellectual Disability and Their Supporters

This checklist can help you to check if a health resource is good and accessible.

Health resources are things like information sheets, guides, videos, tools and websites.

What the checklist is for

The checklist can be used with resources that support the health of people with intellectual disability. This can include resources for:

- people with intellectual disability
- family members, carers and supporters of people with intellectual disability
- health and disability professionals.

How you can use the checklist

You can use the checklist to

- help you decide if a resource is good to use
- help you make good and accessible resources.

Who helped make the checklist

The checklist was made together with people with intellectual disability and other health and disability experts.

We trust this resource

We trust this resource because it is:

- Made with people with intellectual disability
- Made to help, not for profit
- Made by people who know a lot about the topic
- Made in Australia

We've checked this resource, and you can follow our guide to know if health information is true and right for you.

An illustration of a clipboard with a list with ticks with smaller images, like of a book and

This resource was made by

National Centre of Excellence in Intellectual Disability Health

The National Centre of Excellence in Intellectual Disability Health (the Centre) works to improve health services and the health system so people with intellectual disability can live their best, healthiest lives.

The Centre was funded by the Australian Government. It is part of the National Roadmap for Improving the Health of People with Intellectual Disability.

- Visit website